CHICAGO'S BELOVED DEAD.

Remains of Carter H. Harrison Lying in State.

CHICAGO, Nov. 1 .- The remains of Chicago's Garfield were borne to the city hall yesterday, there to lie in state. Dense crowds thronged the streets and sidewalks for blocks around the Carter Harrison mansion on Ashland boulevard and witnessed the start.

The cortege was a long one and the distance to the city hall, two miles through the heart of the city, was not covered for a considerable time.

covered for a considerable time.

All day long two lines of people passed rapidly by, looking only at the black casket, with the prospect that they would so continue throughout the night, if permitted. The face the people looked upon was the one they had been accustomed to in life. Death had wrought no perceptible changes. The late mayor appeared to be sleeping.

All of the entrances to the building and nearly all of the offices in the building are draped with black, and all of the offices, except those that it is absolutely necessary to keep open are solutely necessary to keep open are closed. The public schools will be closed for the funeral. The board of trade, banks and other places of busitrade, banks and other places of business will also be deserted.

The funeral will take place from the Church of the Epiphany at Ashland boulevard and Adams street. An hour before that time the remains will be taken from the city hall to the church where the services according to the Episcopal ritual will be conducted by T. N. Morrison, Jr. The procession will proceed from the church to Graceland cemetery. The column will be a large one. Many societies, civil and military, have applied for place in the line and have been assigned to position by Marshal Austin J. Doyle.

Prendergast, the murderer of Mayor

by Marshal Austin J. Doyle.

Prendergast, the murderer of Mayor Harrison, is having a rough time in jail. The other prisoners have taken every opportunity to jeer at the wretch and shricking imprecations at him, so that exercise outside his cell has been made practically an impossibility. Yesterday, while the mayor's corpse was lying in state at the city hall with thousands reverently pressing by, the assassin seemed for the first time forced to realize his position. The words of assassin seemed for the first time forced to realize his position. The words of his fellow prisoners affected him strangely. All along he had apparently labored under the delusion that his companions in crime would look up to him as a sort of king among them. But their frightful denunciations have dispelled at least this vagary from the man's mind, and he seemed to understand bitterly that he was abhorred even by hardened criminals as a cowardly assassin.
